WHEREAS, Over the years, AVP has expanded its services and impact through the establishment of programs such as the Counseling Center (1996), which provides free trauma-informed counseling to children, families, and individuals affected by violence; the West/Southwest Victim Services Program (2005), which supports victims of violent crime in a community-based setting; and the Youth Violence Outreach (YVO) initiative (2016), which delivers school-based, trauma-informed therapy to young people at risk of becoming victims or perpetrators of violence; and

WHEREAS, AVP's collaboration with the Philadelphia Medical Examiner's Office, beginning in 2007, ensures that families receive immediate emotional and practical support in the devastating days following a homicide; and
