WHEREAS, Over half a century ago, six million Jews were murdered in the Nazi Holocaust as part of a systematic program of genocide, and millions of other people suffered as victims of Nazism; and

WHEREAS, Since its inception PLEPC has initiated important programs to help keep us safe in case of a chemical emergency. There have been Shelter-in-Place drills in the School District and under the direction of Sunoco, the installation of a public notification system in South/Southwest Philadelphia; and

WHEREAS, PLEPC has worked with the Philadelphia Fire Department's HAZMAT and Fire Prevention Units, and has now acquired the rights to use a national shelter-in-place mascot named Wally Wiseguy. Wally will now be Philadelphia's own representative in schools and in the community at large; and

JOURNAL OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF PHILADELPHIA

Councilmember Tasco Introduced the following Resolution, Sponsored by Councilmember Tasco:

 Resolution No. 050272:Resolution authorizing the Council Committee on Commerce and Economic Development to hold hearings on the findings and recommendations of the Brookings Institution's report entitled "The Price is Wrong: Getting the Market Right for Working Families in Philadelphia"; and, further authorizing the Committee to seek advice and recommendations on how Philadelphia can grow its middle class by developing policies that assist working families.

WHEREAS, In comparison to many large cities in the Midwest and Northeast, Philadelphia faces the daunting challenge of population loss, outmigration of young and talented workers, stressed revenue base, business disinvestment, and high concentrations of poor neighborhoods; and

WHEREAS, Households in the bottom quintile of income were the only income group to grow in Philadelphia between 1979 and 1999 and more recently this trend is reflected by a U.S. Census Bureau survey of Philadelphia's households that showed over 1 out of every 5 individuals in Philadelphia live below the poverty line in 2003; and

WHEREAS, Shrinking numbers of middle class households in Philadelphia erode the City's effort to regain competitiveness and without a middle class tax base, the City has less money to spend on schools and services, which lowers the quality of living for everyone, threatens the promise of a public education, and makes it increasingly difficult for the City to attract and retain new families; and

WHEREAS, For these reasons, Philadelphia can both learn from and share strategies to grow a middle class with its peer cities around the country and the Brookings Institution ("Brookings") selected Philadelphia because it has a recognition of this issue, has a dense network of scholars, practitioners, and policymakers, and a receptive local and state government; and

WHEREAS, Brookings, through the support of an Advisory Group developed by the Greater Philadelphia Urban Affairs Coalition, identified, as three major findings of its report, that low-income working families pay higher prices for a wide range of goods and services, that these higher prices reflect a cycle of financial insecurity, and that there are major opportunities to lower prices through state and local reform and market innovation; and

WHEREAS, It is in the interest of this Council to increase Philadelphia's middle class by developing policies and strategies that enhance the economic standing of the City's working families that will ultimately grow Philadelphia's economy; now therefore

RESOLVED, BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA, That the Council Committee on Commerce and Economic Development hold hearings on the findings and recommendations of the Brookings Institution's report entitled "The Price is Wrong: Getting the Market Right for Working Families in Philadelphia"; and, further authorizing the Committee to seek advice and recommendations on how Philadelphia can grow its middle class by developing policies that assist working families.

- ☐ Resolution No. 050276:Resolution calling on the Pennsylvania Delegation of the United States Congress to reject any joint budget resolution that cuts public services and deepens inequality in our nation by increasing the tax breaks that primarily benefit the highest-income households and to vote against any future tax breaks that solely, or substantially only, benefit wealthy Americans and/or large

 Resolution No. 050279:Resolution urging the Mayor not to proceed with the borrowing of funds for the purpose of the Central Library expansion, as authorized by Bill No. 041041, until Council has held hearings to determine whether financing will unduly impact the operation of the remainder of the Free Library system.

WHEREAS, Under Bill No. 041041 (approved January 25, 2005), Council approved funding for the Central Library Project, which includes the expansion of the Central Branch of the Free Library of Philadelphia and renovations to the existing Central Branch building. Bill No. 041041 authorized the issuance of up to $30 million in bonds by the Philadelphia Authority for Industrial Development ("PAID"), the repayment of which would be supported by rental payments the City would be obligated to make to PAID; and

WHEREAS, The Administration represented to Council, during Council's consideration of Bill No. 041041, that the Central Library Project would not impact the branch libraries in the Free Library System. However, after enactment of Bill No. 041041, and contrary to what Council had been led to believe would be the case, the Free Library has proposed that a number of branch libraries would go from full-day service to half-day, and without staffing by professional librarians; and

WHEREAS, On March 31, 2005, Bill No. 050235 was introduced to repeal Bill No. 041041. It was the sponsor's stated intention, in introducing Bill No. 050235, that Council would explore whether the borrowing of funds for the purpose of the Central Library expansion could proceed without unduly impacting the Free Library System, and to revoke Council's authorization for financing if there were not assurances that appropriate funding would be restored to the Free Library System; and

WHEREAS, There may be alternative means of funding the Central Library Project, not involving General Fund revenues, that would make available to the Free Library System monies that would otherwise go to support the repayment of debt issued by PAID; and

WHEREAS, The overwhelming sense of Council is that it would be inappropriate for the Administration to proceed with any borrowings as authorized by Bill No. 041041, until hearings have been held on Bill No. 050235 and on how the Central Library Project may proceed without impacting the operation of the Free Library System; now therefore

RESOLVED, BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA,

THAT Council urges the Mayor not to proceed with the borrowing of funds for the purpose of the Central Library expansion, as authorized by Bill No. 041041, until Council has held hearings on Bill No. 050235 and determined the Central Library Project's financing may proceed without unduly impacting the operation of the Free Library system.

WHEREAS, Autism was first identified by Dr. Leo Kanner in 1943; and

WHEREAS, This disease is now estimated to occur in 1 out of every 500 births, and research further indicates that Autism is 4 times more prevalent in boys than girls and knows no racial, ethnic, or social boundaries. Over one half million people in the United States today have Autism or some form of pervasive developmental disorder; and

WHEREAS, With appropriate intervention, many of the associated behaviors can be positively changed, even in some cases, that the child or adult may appear to the untrained person to no longer have Autism. The majority of children and adults will, however, continue to exhibit some degree of the disability throughout their entire lives. Although there are still no medical tests for diagnosing Autism, and a cure has yet to be found, a better understanding of the disorder has led to a host of strategies to deal with the disability; and

WHEREAS, Under the Children's Health Act of 2000, the Pediatric Autism Research Act provides 40 million dollars annually to research this disability and hopefully find a cure; and

WHEREAS, Founded in 2001, the Philadelphia Chapter of Cure Autism Now (CAN) Foundation is an organization of parents, clinicians and leading scientists committed to accelerating the pace of biomedical research in Autism through research, education and outreach; and
