RESOLUTION NO. 220682

Introduced September 15, 2022

Councilmembers Johnson and Bass

RESOLUTION

Honoring the life and legacy Philadelphia's own Rakim Hasheem Allen, known worldwide by the stage name PnB Rock, on the occasion of his untimely passing.

WHEREAS, Beloved entertainer PnB Rock, born Rakim Hasheem Allen, proudly represented his Germantown origins by including the initials of Pastorius and Baynton Streets in his stage name; and

WHEREAS, PnB Rock's childhood was marked by adversity. Growing up with a single mother and four siblings, he experienced deep poverty and intermittent homelessness. At age 15, he lost his uncle, a father figure, to murder. Following that loss, he turned to a life in the streets, which culminated four years later in a prison sentence of 33 months; and

WHEREAS, During his incarceration, he began writing songs inspired by his own life story. After returning home, he gained recognition for his music via two mixtapes and widely viewed posts on Instagram. His anti-violence anthem, "Something For My City," aired on MTV, poignantly proclaiming, "I'm tired of yellow tape / So tired of teddy bears / I'm sick of kids growing up without their moms and dads"; and

WHEREAS, PnB Rock achieved broader fame in 2016 with his major-label debut, GTTM: Goin Thru the Motions, on Atlantic Records. It featured the Billboard hit "Selfish"; and

WHEREAS, In order to pursue his career, PnB Rock moved first to New York and then to Los Angeles. Tragically, it was in his adopted home of Los Angeles that he was fatally shot during the course of a daytime robbery, as he ate lunch with his girlfriend; and

WHEREAS, He was mourned publicly by a broad range of notable public figures, from Meek Mill and Questlove to New Jersey Governor Phil Murphy and members of this Body; and
