Bearded masks, beaded capes, goatskin headdresses and other costume accessories are among the goods that are brought to Philadelphia from the Mexican towns of San Mateo Ozolco and Huejotzingo; and

WHEREAS, This festival celebrates not only the historical significance of a defining Mexican battle, but the unique and growing influence and contributions of the Mexican Community in Philadelphia; and

WHEREAS, For a decade, the Festival's organizers—Edgar Ramírez, David Piña, Gerardo Chico, Adelaido Torres, Sebastián Lorenzo and Dionicio Jimenez—have worked tirelessly through their organization, San Mateo Carnavaleiro, to uphold the mission to
